

Conflict Management: Doctrinal Management of the Cosmic Lie while Maintaining a Traditionalist Worldview; The United States: A Nine Person Oligarchy

18. This approach can work across the board whether the offensive material is sex education, sensitivity training, deconstruction of Western history, or what have you. But you must remember that constant confrontation of a progressive curriculum will soon result in being classified as “problem parents.”
19. The way to maintain the balance that is required is to constantly orient to the principle that you are not involved in power politics but pivot politics.
20. On the one hand you never criticize the establishment but on the other hand you stand by your guns that your child must not be taught certain things: “Maybe later but not right now.”
21. This approach if successful—dependent on how totalitarian the school district happens to be—will buy you time to teach your child the doctrine he needs to successfully defend his own soul.
22. Eventually your child will have the soul inventory necessary to discern the truth from the lie. He will understand that to make his grades he must spew back the lie when asked and to regurgitate the lie on tests but then immediately discard the information as a means of decision-making or problem-solving.
23. We might call this doctrinal management of the cosmic lie while maintaining a traditionalist worldview in the midst of a progressive environment, or in brief, how to spin in a No Spin Zone.
24. The whole mission of power politics is to change the way the children think. The indoctrination begins at the earliest possible age and results in brain-ingraining. Your child must be protected from this until he can acquire enough doctrine to resist the lie.
25. I do not intend to demean all school teachers for there are marvelous exceptions, but the overwhelming majority are functionaries of the National Education Association whose campaign is to abolish all aspects of Western culture from the nation’s consciousness.
26. The end result is an ever-growing segment of the population that is trained to vote or tolerate a Fabian erosion of constitutional rights while inventing others that are unconstitutional.
27. A government cannot give what it does not possess and it cannot take that which it is obligated to protect. The systematic indoctrination of generation after generation of children to the contrary contributes to encroaching totalitarianism.
28. Through power politics the constitutional republic established by our Founders is being changed into a judicial oligarchy.
29. Our tripartite government was designed to provide a balance of power among the three branches. No one branch is allowed to dominate the other two. Yet because of the impotence of the Executive and the conflict of visions that gridlocks the Legislative, the Judicial now runs the country.

30. In fact, the United States is now run by an oligarchy of nine people: the United States Supreme Court. The opinions of three justices, William H. Rehnquist, Clarence Thomas, and Antonin Scalia almost always reflect the traditional worldview. They are often joined by Anthony M. Kennedy.
 31. The opinions of three justices, Ruth B. Ginsburg, David H. Souter, and Stephen G. Breyer almost always reflect the progressive worldview. They are often joined by John P. Stevens.
 32. The swing vote is that of Sandra D. O'Connor whose only experience as a judge was for six years in Arizona. She now in effect runs the country.
 33. Further, the Constitution has been pretty much retired with the exception of the Fourteenth Amendment which is cited in almost every recent decision by the Court that resulted in radical cultural change.
 34. The rationales used by this Court to contort the Constitution in order to advance its social agenda are gross illustrations of human good and evil designed to accomplish ends that otherwise are forbidden to any branch of the government.
 35. A common characteristic of power politics is the notion that the end justifies the means. But when the means is the deconstruction of the Constitution for politically correct ends then the country has been reduced to an oligarchy of nine.
 36. Pivot politics must take up the slack. Believers must devote themselves to advancing toward maturity while evangelizing others into the royal family.
 37. As the believer citizens of America quietly do their duty, then pivot power grows and Jesus Christ who controls history will fulfill his promise to prosper them all individually and the entire nation collectively through blessing by association.
 38. In the meantime we are not to become emotionally or physically involved as we observe downtrends. We are to objectively analyze the Zeitgeist, conclude its trend, remain positive, and keep our eyes on the mission.
 39. The only solution is the divine solution. If our souls are organized with doctrine and we apply it under pressure, then God will take care of the details.
 40. Vincit omnia veritas: doctrine conquers all!
- 25) It was power politics that characterized most of the regimes of the divided kingdoms. But through it all the line of Christ was preserved even though at one point there was only one man left standing, or better said, only one infant left toddling.
- 26) The next major assault by the ambassador demons on the line of Christ occurred during the reign of Hezekiah and specifically during the siege of Jerusalem by the Assyrian army led by Sennacherib.
